Grateful for Health

National Diabetes Month

The healthy tips and swaps in this month's calendar make it easier to manage diabetes — or prevent it altogether. You can share this calendar with loved ones who have diabetes.

Welcome to November! Research shows that a daily practice of noticing and reflecting on what you're grateful for can help you enjoy life more, improve your health, deal with adversity better, and build stronger relationships (even from 6 feet away or over video!). So get ready to have an attitude of gratitude all month long!

INSPIRATIONAL TUESDAY

"The more grateful I am, the more beauty I see."

—Mary Davis

WED
04

Try starting your day with a 5-minute gratitude meditation. Reflect on the things in your life you're most grateful for and really experience that feeling of appreciation. You can be grateful for anything, from your home to your family to that cup of coffee you've got waiting for you when you're done.

We're loving all the cauliflower swaps that are helping people cut back on carbs, and this Cauliflower Pizza Crust recipe is one of our favorites. Just add a bit of sauce, some low-skim mozzarella, and fresh basil leaves, and indulge (healthfully!).

SAT
07

Staying in tonight? Cozy up to a bowl of chili! Lighten things up by swapping out the ground beef for lean ground turkey, rinsing the beans to remove some of the added sodium, and going easy on the cheese.

SUN

Yes, these Arm Circles may look like you're not exercising, but give it 5 minutes and — whoa! Best of all, you don't need any special equipment to give your arms a serious workout.

MON
09

Sweet potatoes are one of our favorite go-to's for fall meals. They're high in fiber, filling, and so delicious. Try cooking them just like you would a regular potato: Rub the outside with extra-virgin olive oil, pierce a couple of times with a fork, and bake at 425°F for 45 minutes. When done, cut down the middle, fluff, and season as you like.
